

I see programs listed on the TV Guide station for channels that must be purchased and have often wanted to purchase those channels. Then, I wonder if any of the programs are captioned and decide I do not want to sign up for a channel just to find out none or few of the programs are captioned.

In the past I have gone to the channel web page and asked what percent of their programs are captioned but never receive an answer.

Captioned programs are not clearly marked any where. Some programs are advertised with captions but do not have them. On the other hand some programs do not advertise captions but the program is captioned. So for people who need captions must depend on luck whether or not the program they want to watch is captioned.

Please help me find out if a channel I would like to purchase each month will have enough captioned programs to be worth the money.

Remember deafness is not a physical handicap it is a communications handicap. I want to be part of the TV communications world the same as hearing people.

Thank you for your help.
